

Holiday Rockets

Holiday rockets are made of Styrofoam cups and Christmas lights. The lights are strung down through the cups and powered by batteries. The effect is a glowing rocket that looks really awesome when launched at night.

Lee Woodworth, a retired teacher at Silver Lake and former captain and aerospace officer at Pilgrim, showed the cadets how to build the rockets.

Intended for launch at the Christmas Party, but scrubbed by weather, we finally launched them the next week.

